DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is located a short distance east of Md. Route 66, about three miles south of Smithsburg in Washington County, Md. It is situated on an area of level ground just south of a small stream and faces east.

The structure is a two-story log and stone structure with most wall surface covered with horizontal weatherboard siding. The northern portion of the first story of the house is of stone construction. The southern wing is presumably built of logs.

Windows are spaced at random with those at the first story level having six-over-six pane double-hung sashes held within narrow frames.

The roofing material is modern shingles which terminate at the eaves with plain boxing. An exterior chimney of brick is located at the south end wall. An inside end chimney is located at the north elevation and a third flue of brick extends from the interior of the structure at the jointure of the log and brick sections.

A one-story shed roofed porch extends along the front elevation.

The house is in good condition and is located on a 243.9 acre farm known as "The Willows." The main building complex of "The Willows" has been placed on the National Register of Historic Places (see WA-I-039).

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The area of significance of this house is its architecture. Constructed of stone and log, the house is an example of Washington County's early vernacular architecture. It appears to have received relatively few alterations.

The house is also significant for its association with "The Willows," the house of the Huyett family during the late 18th century. See the National Register form for "The Willows" WA-I-039.
